PLATINUM ELECTRODES

The flawless design and workmanship, the complete dependability of Johnson Matthey platinum laboratory apparatus—these qualities spring from rich experience.

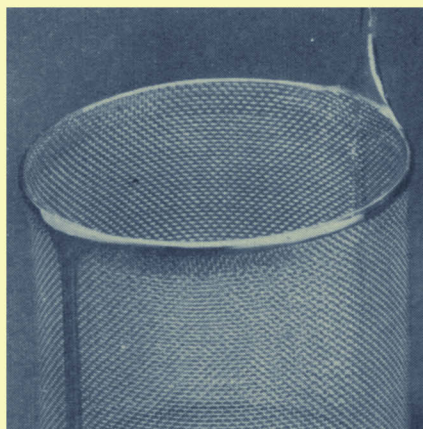

Our deep knowledge and skill in interpretation of the needs of the chemical profession have been acquired in more than a century as leading manufacturers and extensive users of platinum laboratory apparatus of every type.

Johnson Matthey electrode frames, of a specially-developed hard platinum alloy are constructed in half-round wire to avoid sharp corners and to give increased strength without added weight.

Specialised Products of

Johnson Matthey

Full details of our production of platinum electrodes are given in booklet 1720, while data sheet 2700 deals more generally with our range of platinum apparatus for analysis and research. Both publications are available, free, on request.
